

Online

Advocacy 101: Strategies for Supporting Positive Change Where We Are

From our various vantage points across the institutions we serve and lead, we are well-aware of the needs and opportunities for improvement facing higher education. Often equally well-equipped and well-positioned to meet those challenges, we nevertheless can find ourselves tempted to underestimate our own influence and impact. The truth is, however, we each have arenas in which our skills and insight are highly valued, spaces where our voices carry great weight and our recommendations guide important decisions. Now is the time to leverage that standing. Join us for this virtual session as we explore strategies for effectively identifying and deploying the tools we can bring to our work as advocates and champions for the causes that call us to action.

Agents, Allies, and Advocates for a Brighter Future

Thursday,
February 29, 2024
3:30-4:30pm

REGISTER HERE

Speaker Shell Sizemore

Women's Center Director at Wake Forest University

ncacewomensnetwork.org

